

alcoholism and drug use. From age 10, Justin was on and off the streets of Seattle, moving to San Francisco at age 19. Now a successful businessman and activist, Justin authors his memoir as a nod to those he loved, those he lost and those he has forgiven. He launches his book tour with private book readings and signings at various homeless youth shelters, young men's groups and drug programs, going "home" to encourage others and inspire better lives. Renowned photographer Mary Ellen Mark captured his life on the streets in a Life Magazine photo essay. Justin can also be seen in those days in the now cult classic-status, Academy Award nominated documentary, Streetwise (1984). This true-life journal was directed by Ms. Mark's husband, Martin Bell, and produced by Life writer Cheryl McCall. Now a public speaker and businessman, Justin was a founding board member of the popular youth agency BAY Positives in San Francisco. He served on several youth committees and remains a dedicated advocate for homeless youth and human equality. He recently served on the board of directors of the Washington D.C. based National Network for Youth, and that agency has endorsed his book. A portion of the proceeds from StreetChild will benefit life enhancing non-profit organizations, including many of those that helped Justin while on the streets. album's success brought total sales of Mariah's albums, singles and videos to more than 160 million worldwide, distancing her even further from the pack as the top-selling female recording artist in history. E=MC² spun off four singles: "Touch My Body," "Bye Bye," "I'll Be Lovin' U Long Time" and "I Stay In Love." Of these, "Touch My Body" made history when it became Mariah's 18th #1 Hot 100 hit, thus surpassing Elvis Presley. "Touch My Body" spent two weeks at the top also marked Mariah's 78th and 79th cumulative career weeks at #1, which tied Elvis' long-standing all-time high of 79 weeks at #1, as calculated in Billboard.com. At the same time, Mariah is now positioned as the only active recording artist in the 50 years of the Hot 100 (which began in 1958) with the potential to surpass the Beatles' all-time high of 20 #1 hits.
