

The Search Stops Here...

FoodieView makes it easy to find good food fast on the Web through our Recipe Search Engine that's unlike any other.

You no longer need to visit individual Web sites one-by-one in search of authentic, well-tested recipes. Our innovative recipe search engine uniquely allows you to conveniently search ALL of the Internet's most popular recipe Web sites, including Epicurious.com, AllRecipes.com, Recipezaar.com, FoodNetwork.com as well as boutique food sites and key food blogs, simultaneously from one search tool. That's right...one single FoodieView recipe search delivers results from all of your favorite cooking sources.

Go ahead, search by ingredient, keyword, dish name, cuisine, chef, dietary program and restrictions, or any other parameter of interest. FoodieView's recipe search results are then listed by relevance and user rating, also delivered with additional "narrow down" search options, making it incredibly easy to find the most popular, proven recipes. You can also keep track of your favorite recipe links using FoodieView's free Recipe Box tool!

FoodiView founder Howie Wang puts it in perspective:

“ We’ve all done it...visited several Web sites to research just one dish, trying to figure out each site’s navigation scheme and functionality along the way. We learned the hard way that general purpose search engines deliver results that may not even take you to a recipe page, but rather informal discussion about a dish or a cookbook review. Even on cooking-specific sites, when you want to save a recipe after culling through a dizzying number of generic results, you must first register and then login...on each one! Who’s in the mood to cook – or even had time to cook – after all of that work? ”

FoodieView has single-handedly solved this problem by providing direct, one-click access to the most comprehensive, highest quality and easiest to focus collection of recipes on the Web.

Bon appétit!

FoodieView Tip: Throw Caution to the Wind!

Use our search tool to clean out your refrigerator. Simply type the ingredients that you happen to have on hand into FoodieView's engine, and see what recipes turn up. The results often lead to interesting dishes that may not have come to mind otherwise.