SO LUXURIOUS

LUXE HOTEL SUNSET BOULEVARD:

L.A.'s ultimate urban retreat

Nestled among seven lush garden estate acres in the heart of Los Angeles is the Luxe Hotel Sunset Boulevard, Bel Air, a wonderful urban retreat.

Upon arrival, plush and cozy furnishings in the open, airy, fresh orchid-scented hotel lobby beckon you to sit back and settle into "vacation mode." It's easy to do so with the super-attentive staff, as well as the moist towelette and complimentary glass of Shiraz wine you can opt for upon arrival (a different welcome amenity includes a cappuccino).

Space

The hotel's copious indoor and outdoor public spaces and its spacious guest rooms, all renovated in 2006 with the help of famed interior designer Mary McDonald, feel less like a hotel and more like a visit to a sprawling luxury residence. In line with the aesthetic throughout the rest of the hotel, you'll find that your room's elegantly neutral color palette of taupe, cream and chocolate brown is offset by comfortable and contemporary custom furniture, seaside-inspired artwork and décor, soft linens and window treatments, a down feather comforter, and an assortment of posh pillows.

Each room at this boutique-style hotel has special touches, like pre-moistened Cooling Cucumber Eye Pads to soothe tired eyes, and other creature comforts like designer toiletries and a cozy signature cotton bathrobe and slippers.

Luxe Hotel Sunset Boulevard offers 160 guest rooms and suites in all, ranging in size from 552 square feet to 800 square feet—a suite that offers a bedroom, separate living room, and a refreshment area and wet bar.
