MAUREEN ROBST

Open up in a jiff

The Open It combines five useful tools in one. It opens clamshell packaging with ease, snips twist ties and includes a bottle cap opener, screwdriver and utility blade. Even lefties can use it. I was pleasantly surprised at how easily it cuts open a package, and snipping those annoying twist ties was a snap. It is definitely an all-in-one tool that will get lots of use. Open It is available at major retailers for $9.99. www.enjoyZibra.com.

Thinking through game night

Mummy's Treasure is a quick-paced, portable board game. The goal is to roll the dice and win pieces by matching symbols to various tiles to fill in your excavation site. The tiles come in six different shapes so gamers need to use their thinking skills to complete their card. It only takes about 10 minutes to complete a game and is geared for kids 5 and older. Mummy's Treasure retails for $12. www.haba.de.

Make your kids zillionaires

Kids can learn the importance of saving and have fun with The Zillionaire. This personal savings machine has three separate banks for spending, saving and investing. Your little spender sets up a password to access the money and can set specific savings goals for each account. The bank keeps track of how much is in each account. Our kid tester loved watching his balances grow with each deposit. It takes a bit of set up, so parents will need to help. The Zillionaire, designed for kids 5 and older, retails for $49.99.
