The Putting Arc

The Putting Arc is not just a random circle on the ground, but instead it is a precise elliptical arc based on the 2200 year-old conic section math formulas of Apollonius of Perga (262 BC - 190 BC). The math of Apollonius has been combined with space age computer design and CNC manufacturing, and used to produce every single Putting Arc.

Over 2000 pro wins with all kinds of putters and every size of pro golfer are proof of the accuracy of this math. The first known pro win by a Putting Arc user was the 2002 Scandinavian Masters, and it was won by a Graeme McDowell, 2002 College Player of the Year and a future U.S. Open champion. Two recent wins by the #1 woman player in the world show that the Putting Arc still works today!

The Golf Range Association of America has recently conducted a poll of 250 of the top teaching professionals in the USA and for all six years of this poll the Putting Arc was identified as the most used putting training aid by these top teachers.

Get your own Putting Arc, use it at home for a few minutes every day and quickly develop the on-plane, arc-type stroke of the modern touring pro.

PINK Series 3 Max Rangefinder

Blue Tees Golf designed the new Series 3 Max Rangefinder in a pretty, PINK hue, designed to appeal to the female golfer.

"The women's segment of the golf market has grown steadily over the past decade but during the pandemic a large percentage of the new golfers are women. We decided to be the first in the golf rangefinder space to address women golfers and our retail partners are completely in alignment with this objective," said Blue Tees Golf Vice President of Sales, Taylor Herber.

The new PINK Series 3 Max Rangefinder will soon establish itself with consumers and retailers amongst the industry's premium rangefinders. Its exceptional features include the company's most advanced software, active slope switch technology, crystal clear display, advanced flag lock and pulse vibration and auto-ambient technology.

Blue Tees Golf developed the new PINK Series 3 Max Rangefinder for the women's segment of the golf market but the company believes the shade of pink transcends gender, male or female, and will attract fashion forward golfers as seen in apparel, golf balls, and in golf equipment.

In addition to the chic PINK and white color combination, the new stylish Series 3 Max Rangefinder boasts premium materials, a custom weather-proof case, and retails for $259.00.

The PINK Series 3 Max Rangefinder will be available at Dick's Sporting Goods/Golf Galaxy, PGA Superstores, and over 500 green grass locations for the holiday season.
